NEW UM FORESTRY SCHOLARSHIP HONORS FORMER FACULTY MEMBER

MISSOULA --

A $15,000 endowment from the late Alva Angell of Williston, N.D., has established the Fay G. Clark Memorial Scholarship for University of Montana forestry resource management students.

The scholarship, established through the UM Foundation, honors Angell's first husband, who retired in 1955 after 33 years on UM's forestry faculty. Income from the fund will provide an annual scholarship of about $600.

Clark, once employed by the U.S. Forest Service as forest supervisor of the Deerlodge National Forest, joined UM's faculty after World War I. He helped fill a demand for teachers who could relate well to veterans pouring into the forestry school.

When he retired, the state Board of Regents cited him for "giving color and distinction to forestry education" and producing a "record which demanded industry, independent thinking, and a practical understanding of the field of forestry by graduates of the School."

Contributions may be sent to the Fay G. Clark Memorial Scholarship Fund in care of the University of Montana Foundation, P.O. Box 7159, Missoula, MT 59807.
